Who is Homeless?

According to the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act of 1987.

42 US Code §§11431-11435

What is the McKinney-Vento Act?

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act of 1987 is federal law that addresses the educational barriers and challenges created by homelessness by guaranteeing students experiencing homelessness the right to enroll in and attend school, and providing supports needed for school success. Although the Act is designed to help children experiencing homelessness, the definition of ‘homelessness’ outlined is helpful to anyone experiencing housing insecurity.

Who is Homeless?

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act describes homelessness and housing insecurity as, “lacking a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence. Including:

- Sharing housing of others due to loss of housing, economic hardship, eviction or similar reason
- Living in motels, hotels, trailer parks, or camping grounds due to the lack of alternative adequate accommodations
- Living in an emergency or transitional shelters, or are abandoned in hospitals
- Living in a public or private place not designated for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings (including cars, parks, public spaces, abandoned buildings, substandard housing living spaces with no water or electricity)
