If you think our animals are special, wait until you meet our volunteers! Every year, hundreds of volunteers give their time, energy, and enthusiasm to help us accomplish the important work of conserving wildlife and wild places. Volunteers can be found throughout the Zoo, behind the scenes and with our visitors. Whether you're looking for a day of meaningful service or a lifetime relationship, you can be an important part of our family! The vast majority of our adult volunteers work directly as educators, greeters, animal contact aides, and more. Selection and training for these positions takes place only in late winter and early spring, in order to get our new classes ready in time for the rush of seasonal visitors. Other positions have deadlines as well, based on school calendars, Zoo needs, or other factors. Please check the opportunity directory for your preferred assignment, or contact us for information about when we might be adding new volunteers in a specific program.

Is there another local organization prepared to immediately respond, within 48 hours, to meet the needs of 120 people burned out of their homes in seven separate fires across the community? Red Cross volunteers rushed to aid victims of four apartment building fires as well as another dozen people displaced after three single-family fires in Baltimore during a particularly hectic weekend. More typically, the Red Cross responds to two or three fires each day. We are equally prepared for large and small-scale disasters. We also teach Central Marylanders how to ready themselves for the unexpected.

We work toward a future when our streams, rivers and Harbor are healthy, thriving ecosystems that are accessible and safe for citizens, visitors and commerce. To achieve these goals, we monitor the Baltimore area waterways for pollution. We organize trash cleanups, plant trees on public land, and provide green infrastructure to reduce storm water runoff. We advocate for stronger laws for clean water, both locally and statewide.
